Working field

The research project "The Linguistic (Pre-)History of the Indo-Iranian Frontier," funded by the German Research Foundation (DFG) within the Emmy Noether Program, examines the modern languages of the Indo-Iranian Frontier (present-day Afghanistan and Pakistan). It aims to gain a more comprehensive picture of the region's linguistic history and prehistory through a close integration of field research and empirical-descriptive work with historical- comparative studies. One subproject each focuses on representatives of the Indo-Iranian subbranches Iranian (Yidgha-Munji), Nuristani (Prasun), and Indo-Aryan (Kunar group). Next to descriptive work in the modern languages, historical comparison with earlier-attested stages of Iranian (Old and Middle Iranian) and Indo-Aryan (Old and Middle Indo-Aryan) is another important component of the project.

Job description:

- Doing linguistic fieldwork on Yidgha in Pakistan
- Working with archival materials on Munji
- Contributing to historical-comparative work as part of the project team (e.g., etymological coding of word lists, constructing databases on historical phonology)
- The third-party funded research project provides an opportunity to do a doctorate: Writing a PhD thesis on a topic related to Yidgha language description or the history of the Yidgha- Munji group.

Requirements

Requirements:

- Master's degree or equivalent in a relevant field (e.g., linguistics, Indo-European studies, Iranian studies, indology)

Desirable:

- Willingness to conduct linguistic fieldwork under potentially challenging conditions
- Interest in historical linguistics
- Ability to work in a team
- Previous experience with ancient and/or modern Indo-Iranian languages
- Communicative competence in / willingness to acquire basic knowledge of one of the regional contact languages (Persian, Pashto, Urdu, Khowar)
- Familiarity with the methods of historical linguistics (comparative method, linguistic reconstruction)
- Previous experience or theoretical familiarity with the methods of linguistic fieldwork
- Competence and experience in intercultural communication
- Experience working with digital databases and other IT skills
