Your responsibility:

The Collaborative Research Centre (CRC) 1265 "Re-Figuration of Spaces", funded by the German Research Foundation (DFG) at Technische Universität Berlin since 2018, investigates the transformation of socio-spatial orders observable since the late 1960s. The advertised position is located in subproject A02 "Children's Spatial Knowledge: Hybrid Spatial Practices of Young People in Politics and Planning". This project examines how children's spatial knowledge is shaped by their use of digital media and explores policies and planning practices that deliberately seek to influence these hybrid practices. The research contexts are China and Germany. The project conducts research in dialogical and visual formats with children. In addition, mapping workshops with practitioners in the field of child-friendly urban development are carried out in China and Germany, and comprehensive literature analyses are prepared.
